He was built like a rugby player, had a big smile, was talkative and liked to tell jokes is the image of Harold Bradford that Penguino Rouge will keep in his memory. At first considered accidental by the first coroner, the death of Harold Bradford, an English ex-Marine from England turned out to be a crime. The second autopsy made it possible to establish that the commando in his thirties suffered a knife wound and was probably killed by multiple blows to the head. Medical evidence also suggests rape or sodomy. How could Harold Bradford have met his killer Monday night? Deserted Streets. Bars largely empty. Monday night police and reporters walked around the Central Business District following the route Harold Bradford was known to have taken on the night of 7 thru 8 November, also a Monday night. Hence this reflection: How could he have met with a misadventure? It was also noted that Harold Bradford had a lot of cash on him that night. Was he robbed by one or more thieves? The location of...
