Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from A Syllabus for Economics I Interpolated With Expository, Critical, and Interpretative Matter 1. The student is held strictly responsible for: (1) the text book; (2) all additional and critical matter in this Syllabus; (3) for the lectures and discussions given by the instructor; (4) and for a minimum of 50 pp. a week (beginning with the second week of the semester) of collateral reading, to be selected from the citations at the ends of the text book chapters, from others noted in the Syllabus, or from still others recommended orally by the instructor or approved by him. 2. It is suggested that the student let his collateral reading be upon the special topics that interest him most, upon those that give him special difficulty, and upon the points specially emphasized by the instructor in class or in the Syllabus. 3. Reading Reports: Beginning with the second week of the semester (omitting Thanksgiving week of the first semester) the student will hand in at the beginning of the last class hour of each week, a written report on his week s collateral reading. Fourteen such reports are required for the semester s work. Such reports are to be on cards 4 x 6, and are to indicate the number of the report, the date, the name of the author or writer read, the name of the book or other publication, the subject read upon, and in brief suggestive phrases, the significant points of the matter read. (Use both sides of cards.) Reports are to be handed in promptly, unless delay is permitted by the instructor for good cause. When tardiness in handing in reports is unexcused,...
