His parents were undocumented Mexicans who lived in the shadows. Shawn didn't. His youth was spent crisscrossing the Texas/Mexico border to visit family and friends. When he turned eighteen, graduating in the top ten percent of his Texas high school class, and to the everlasting consternation of his parents, he decided to move to Mexico. He had chosen to join the military and to live his life as a Mexican Marine over an American college education, student loan debt, and a struggle to make it in a country that still considered him a wetback; a taco-eater from south of the border. Now married with one son and another on the way Petty Officer Second Class Shawn Delgado's world is turned upside down when he is sent on a mission into the Lacandon jungle in northern Guatemala. When the members of the Lacandon mission team start turning up dead, Lt. Daniel...
