Not illustrated. 1834 Excerpt: .the faith and preaching and praying of some of these Teachers is as directly contrary to the faith, preaching, and praying of others as can possibly be imagined. I, therefore, ask, can any man possessed of reason, for a moment imagine that the Holy and Blessed Spirit would raise up and inspire one man to preach one thing, and another man to preach another thing quite the contrary? Impossible, Sir, the very thought is derogatory to the attributes of the Most High. And, therefore, as it is utterly impossible that all the various pretenders to S Cor. xii. 12. +John v. 31. inspiration should be right, how are we to know who are right and who are wrong? We are not to suppose that God has so frequently cautioned us against false Prophets and false Teachers, without furnishing us with means by which we may be able to distinguish his true Ministers from the false. From the Bible we discover that no person ever duly exercised the Ministerial Office, without having either received regular Ordination, or being able to work miracles. And the evidence of having received regular Apostolic or Episcopal Ordination or miracles, are the only proofs we now have, that persons are true Ministers of Christ. By these two tests we are to try the pretensions of all who lay claim to the Ministerial Office, and all those who cannot abide the trial, are, of course, false Prophets and false Teachers. It may be said, that...
