On hearing this ejaculation, each student is required, forthwith, to extinguish his candle, say Deo gratias and fall asleep. This is the regular routine subject to a slight variation on Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday, on the first of which days they go on the public walk, on the second to Confession, and on the third to Communion, to High Mass, to vespers, and to an experimental sermon, preached by the students of the three divinity classes, in rotation. Let me now sum up the periods of the day at which the rule of silence does not hold. There are almost forty minutes after breakfast, half an hour after first class, an hour and ten minutes after dinner, and about half an hour after supper. These united periods make just two hours and fifty minutes. So that out of the twentyfour hours, there are less than three granted them for the exercise of the faculty of speech! When the Creator implanted that glorious faculty in man, and imparted to him, in that concession, a characteristic of distinguishing pre-eminence over the brute, surely he did not intend that such a gift should be rendered unavailing. A heathen writer, with whom every school-boy is acquainted, knew how to appreciate the dignity of the human mind, and its hand-maiden-- speech, and declared it to be the bounden duty of every man to exert himself to the utmost sese prestare coeteris animalibus -- and yet we find the professors...
