Not illustrated. 1787 Excerpt: . . . judge (instead of God) when crimes required the sanguinary punishment of dividing the soul from the body. These are they who have devoured Jacob, their sins are as scarlet, the peoples blood have they shed like water, they have defiled the royal daw of liberty by their forcible entries with heathen institutes. Wherefore should they longer say, Where is our God Let him be knowh among the heathen in our sight by the revenging of the blood of his servants which is shed. Let the sighing of the prisoner dome before thee, O Lord! according to the greatness of thy power preserve thou those that are appointed to die! We look with concern and abhorrence on the bloody hue of the felony laws, and the frequent executions in England, in this reign, under a nominal administration of justice, since the time our eyes have been opened to the expectation of salvation, pardon, expiation, and deliverance in this world, through the divine providence, justice, and mercy of Gods holy law, in savour of our cases, annulling the rigour of our sentences, and in arrest of the perverted judgments pronounced upon us. It would be with the laws of God, or to set up the rebellious judgments of men against the decree of the Almighty. The Lord is a God of judgment, blessed are all they that wait for him. Save us, O Lord our God! and send enlargement, that we may give praise unto thy holy...
