Excerpt: . we know just what each crop takes from the soil and what it contributes to its enrichment, then it is possible reflectively to devise ways and means of adjusting crops to the soil and to one another in the agricultural process. In other words, the problems can be solved by reasoning; for exact knowledge of the essential factors entering into them can be secured, and laws and principles can be applied in the construction of methods of procedure. 4. Definition Of Reasoning. Having pointed out the specific differentia of the reasoning process, we are now ready to define reasoning from that point of view. Reasoning is controlled thinking, -- thinking organised and systematised according to laws and principles and carried on by the use of superior elements of technique. 5. Biological Significance Of Reasoning. (1) Reasoning the highest factor of control. The great problem of living creatures in their evolution from lower to higher forms is that of control over their environment. That form of control is most valuable in which the individual is able to manipulate elements of his environment in such a way as to make them serve as means to the realization of his own ends. The conscious processes are significant in the life of the organism on this very account. Reasoning is the culmination and summation of all the conscious processes in so far as they may be conceived as control phenomena. All thinking is essentially constructive in its...
