Total Utility and the Economic Judgment: Compared with Their Ethical Counterparts a Dissertation Presented to the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By Marion Parris

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Total Utility and the Economic Judgment: Compared With Their Ethical Counterparts a Dissertation Presented to the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy The general object of this study is to set forth the organic connection between certain concepts appearing as integral parts of modern ethical and economic theory, and to indicate several points of similarity in the logical processes which they involve. The position of the person who draws analogies between two sciences, or two fields of human thought, or who asserts parallelisms and identities is one of peculiar difficulty. Not only are there, separate fields to cover, and separate philosophical and critical points of view to consider, but the difficulties of terminology are great. The same words are often used in different subjects with a different connotation, or terms used in one science in a specialised sense, are often misleading or meaningless in another connection. This is especially true with respect to ethical and economic terminology, where such words as value, worth, interest, and many others receive in each science a...
