Excerpt from The Journal of Sociologic Medicine, Vol. 17: Continuing the Bulletin of the American Academy of Medicine; December, 1916 Again, a grammar school education no longer constitutes an adequate preliminary training for those who are to study medicine. The student needs a knowledge of physics, of chemistry and of biology, in order to better understand the more complex medical sciences. He needs to study anatomy and pathology so he may differentiate between normal and abnormal structures and conditions and note the changes produced by disease; he must study bacteriology so as to understand the diseases caused by such micro - organisms; he needs physiology and physiological chemistry so he may understand the function and composition of the various secretions and substances of the body; he must study pharmacology so he can note the physiological action of various chemical and medicinal substances; he needs to study the various types of disease in dispensaries and at the bedside in hospitals, and while still under supervision he should further develop skill and reliability and round out his course of medical training by...
