Many eye diseases are progressive. Low vision is often a stage on the way towards blindness. It is also very important in this situation to make use of the residual vision, even if it is temporary. A person should be given opportunity to use his vision no matter for how long time the residual vision is estimated to last if he is motivated to do so. This person should be able to belong to the same organization for visually handicapped with or without residual vision. In this book, and in this preface, the concepts of low vision, visual impairment, residual vision, partially sighted and visually handicapped are used in a somewhat confused way. Visually handicapped includes both totally blind persons and persons with residual vision, the visually impaired or the partially sighted. The two latter concepts include persons with low vision up to a visual acuity of or more. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
