According to Orme (2010, p. 1) the consumer preferences are changing constantly with an increasing speed. Therefore many marketing managersask themselves, how they could asses client preferences Which product characteristics are most important to the customer and what price brings the maximum profit From Wilcox s (2003, p. 1) point of view conjoint analysis gives answers to these most critical questions of marketing research. The conjoint analysis is a marketing research technique designed to help managers determine the value system of clients and potentialcustomers (Wilcox, 2003, p. 1). Introduced as a fundamental measurement method by the mathematical psychologists Luce and Tukey (1964, p. 1) more than forty years ago, conjoint analysis presents combination of features in product profiles and ask people torank or make choice among of them. Finally, the results can be used for new product design, targeting, pricing and market segmentation (Dolan, 1990, p. 1). However, there arises the question what is conjoint analysis really and why it has become so popular in contrast to other marketing research techniques In order to answer these questions, section 2.1 defines the terms marketing and market
