Condition: New. Ships From Canada. New in new dust jacket. Book Description: Anna felt down with her feet but there was nothing. The velvet water flowed round her, colder then warmer on her skin, and thick with floating particles, fragments of the land on their way to the sea. She stretched out her arms, brown with sunburn, but under the water they looked bloodless white. The river stroked her like fingers along her thighs, her back, her breasts and whispered in her ears there was nothing else, no birdsong, no sound of leaves. The canopy was as silent as a church. from The River In the summer of 1958 two children drown while playing in a boat on a Devon river. Their parents, Isabel and Robert, are bound together in guilt and anger, and as years pass the tragedy becomes part of the invisible fabric of life in the village of Cameldip. Thirty years later Anna comes to Cameldip, escaping city life and her own disappointments. Looking for a room to let, she places an ad in the local shop. It is Isabel who.
