AKASHIC BOOKS, United Kingdom, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Nominated for the 2014 Hurston/Wright Legacy Award in Fiction! Publishers Weekly has named The Gospel According to Cane a 2012-13 Notable African-American Title A mother's love is unbreakable, as Frank O'Connor Award-nominee Newland demonstrates in his latest novel. The storytelling is as captivating as the story itself. Newland, a Jamaican-born British writer, seamlessly integrates the joy, fear, uncertainty, and sadness. Newland's prose is beautiful. His novel--part homecoming narrative in the vein of Toni Morrison's Beloved and part haunting tale of loss similar to Ernest Gaines's In My Father's House--will appeal to all lovers of literary fiction. --Library Journal The emotional tension is sometimes almost unbearable as a mother and son attempt to build a relationship out of their shared pain. A unique and very moving novel. --Booklist The characters are finely drawn with realistic ambiguity and genuinely exhibit the durability of grief and pain. --Publishers Weekly Newland delivers an intense portrait of mental conflict against a gritty inner-city background. The book we are reading is Beverley Cottrell's journal. This journal of my pain, becomes a spiral of cathartic violence during which Newland deftly keeps the reader guessing. --Kirkus Reviews As Bev confesses in her journals to events that make her appear less than the fragile idealist she first appeared, Newland's tale gathers pace and tension. Violence becomes a real possibility. Happy ending or sad? Newland delivers a bit of both in this complex, cathartic portrait of an intelligent, if not always sensible woman, who refuses any longer to be defined by loss. --Toronto Star What could be a simple, emotive story of grief and redemption becomes, in Newland's hands, something more complex. The Gospel According to Cane is a page-turner, merging...
