Excerpt from Some Difficulties of the Transportation Business: Address to the Chamber of Commerce of Ansonia, Conn., By Howard Elliott, Chairman of the Board and President of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company; April 4, 1916 Aug 181916make it hard to cure those difficulties. As the subject is vital to the welfare of the United States, the welfare of New England and the welfare of the Naugatuck Valley, and to every manufacturer in it, I thought it might be of interest to speak of it. The Great To begin with, we know that up to Business 3oom. Less than a year ago business through out the United States was not very good. We had many idle freight cars all over the United States. We had many idle engines. We had many men unemployed and committees in various cities were asking employers of labor to give employment to men. Many of us felt, I know I did, business would improve, but many made the mistake that perhaps I made - we did not realize it would improve as fast as it has. Even as late as the first of August last, only eight months ago, the New Haven Road had 200 engines in apple-pie order, laid up in what we call white lead on side tracks with nothing to do. Then this business, this wonderful business started. One hundred million people of the United States had been stimulated in their activities by the demand for so-called war materials. Then, too, the shelves of countless storehouses all over the country had become depleted of all kinds of goods. The buy ing power of people started, and this busy New England, filled with...
