Reviews

This pdf is indeed gripping and interesting. It is definitely simplistic but shocks within the 50 percent of your book. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 82: October 7, 1920 At no time since beginning this review of the Millennial Star has its inadequacy seemed so obvious. To attempt to epitomize the ministerial and editorial labors of the administration of President Penrose, is like trying to reduce the irreducible; his personal activity was incessant, his accomplishments prodigious; to even mention them by their significant headings would transcend the space at our command. The titles alone to the editorials he wrote one, at least, and sometimes three for each of the 183 issues he put out, would take a large part of the space we find available. Commencing with the 49th number of volume sixty-eight, December 6, 1906, these editorials ran through all the volumes sixty-nine, seventy, seventy-one and down to the 23rd number in volume seventy-two, June 9, 1910. What a variety of subjects of past and current interest they covered; and all treated from the standpoint of an authorized propagandist of the gospel of Jesus Christ, pertinent to the interests of the mission and inspired by the Holy Spirit of God! The 69th volume is presented in a new dress, the type all new and a little larger, but not much change in the makeup. Elder William A. Morton was assistant editor and regular contributor of leading and important articles, as well as of departmental matter, of which the Sunday-school lessons were chief; the editorial space was filled every week, however, from the facile pen of the President. The statistical report of the British mission for the year 1906, the last of President Grant's term, showed 84 branches; members; 676 baptized; 363 emigrated; 281 missionaries; strangers...
