Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Development of the District of Columbia And in 1820, in the case of Loughborough v.Blake (5 Wheat., 317, 323-325), the Supreme Court of the United States, which had been appealed to to declare, in effect, that the government of the District of Columbia, in that it involved taxation without representation, was contrary to the spirit of our institutions, disposed of the matter in these words: If, then, the language of the Constitution be construed to comprehend the Territories and District of Columbia us well as the States, that language confers on Congress the power of taxing the District and Territories as well as the States. If the general language of the Constitution should be confined to the Slates, still the sixteenth paragraph of the eighth section of Article I gives to Congress the power of exercising exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever within this District. On the extent of these terms, according to the common understanding of mankind, there can be no difference of opinion; but it is contended that they must be limited by...
