In his distress he cried unto God; in the day of his trouble he sought the Lord. In this time of depression, thoughts of God did not, as at other times, afford him consolation. I remembered God and was troubled. Perhaps he thought of the holiness and justice of God, in contrast with his own vileness and sin, and his spirit was overwhelmed. So deep was his distress that ho could not slope, and utterance could not be given to the anguish of his soul. Thou holdest mine eyes waking. I am so troubled that I cannot speak. He seems to have remembered bis former experience, the time his soul triumphcd in God, his song in the night but even tbia did not lift the cloud from his spirit, and he was led to the very bordors of despair, and cried, Will the...
