Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 64: July 10, 1902 It was a little after 3 am; out into the night and storm we went. The wind howling, nearly blinded us with the whirl of snow. With every step came sharp rheumatic pains from ankle to hip, and this made progress slow. We did not know the way, but were led by the Spirit. At 5 am. We saw a light and on inquiry found we had been traveling right. On, on we tramped, the crucifix at the entrance of every town and along the roadside telling us plainer than words the kind of community. Still we went on, the snow making it hard to travel. We were so cold that we were driven to ask a few moments shelter in one of the prevalent house-barn dwellings, but were denied the same, still, to modify the coldness of the refusal, something more than a penny was thrust into our hands before the door swung to. The cold was intense, especially as we were wet through and through from...
