Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from A Guide for the Study of Animals The following guide to the study of animals is intended for pupils in secondary schools. It was prepared by the authors at the request of the Biology Round Table, an association composed of the teachers of Biology in the Chicago High Schools, to whom the authors wish to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation of the many helpful suggestions and criticisms of the manuscript. The time has passed when a high school course in zoology consists simply of a somewhat simplified edition of a similar course in college. All teachers now recognize that the motivation of any course should be its adaptability to the needs of the student, and that zoology must be taught from the standpoint of the student rather than that of the subject. In preparing this guide, the authors have tried to keep these points in mind. The matter of presentation, the order of topics, and the choice of material has been much discussed, but the trend of opinion has finally set in toward...
