Excerpt from Pestilential Foreign Invasion: As a Question of States Rights and the Constitution; The Failure of the Maritime States Demands a Common Defence; An Address Delivered Before the Tri-State Medical Society of Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, at Chattanooga, October 26, 1892 Most of the stations are under local control, and the efficiency and method of enforcement of the regulations vary greatly. The stations, taken as a whole, constitute our only defence against the introduction of plagues, and as a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, our preparation to keep such plagues out must remain imperfect until such weak points can be strengthened. I think all the sanitary authorities in the United States agree that a department of public health at Washington, is a. Necessity that will doubtless claim the attention of Congress next winter.
