Excerpt: .to the more or less constant directions in which winds blow, they may be classed as regular, periodical, and variable winds. i. Regular winds are those which blow all the year through in a virtually constant direction. These winds, which are also known as the trade winds, are uninterruptedly observed far from the land in equatorial regions, blowing from the north-east to the south-west in the northern hemisphere, and from the south-east to the northwest in the southern hemisphere. They prevail on the two sides of the equator as far as 30 of latitude, and they blow in the same direction as the apparent motion of the sun, that is, from east to west. The air above the equator being gradually heated, rises as the sun passes round from east to west, and its place is supplied by the colder air from the north or...
