Clayton, of Delaware, on the Veto Message of the President, on the Bill for the Benefit of the Indigent Insane: In the Senate of the United States, June 15, 1854 It is quite clear than that the exclusive application of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands, to expenses of the Federal Government, if it should cause, as the Senator says, the necessary diminution of taxation, by which he means duties on imports, may produce very unequal effects upon the States of this Union, and the injuries thus inflicted upon some may be destructive to them while it may be by no means so severely felt by others. It has been said that if the proceeds of the sales of the public lands had been properly husbanded, and they were all new care fully applied to the ordinary expenses of the Government, if the wasteful system of donations had never been introduced, and the funds had been economically protected and applied, they would now pay the expenses of a truly economical administration of the Government without resorting to the customs. Be this as it may, it will at least be admitted by all, they would materially reduce the amount necessary to be collected for the ordinary expenses of Government, so that if duties on imports were laid on for revenue, the tariff would be so much lowered that no essential protection could be derived from it on an article of American growth or manufacture. If five per cent. Duties assessed on a foreign valuation, what would be come...
