Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Rubber in Industry: A Story of the Development, Manufacture and Uses of Rubber Belting, Hose, Molded Goods, Packings, Floor Coverings, Miscellaneous Rubber Articles and Rubber Insulated Wire When employed in connection with rubber manufacturing, the term, Mechanical Goods, embraces that group of articles which are used in conjunction with the construction of other things and regardless of whether these be a part of the finished product itself or accessory to the equipment employed in its manufacture, the fact remains the same. By way of illustration - the radiator hose of an automobile is an article falling into this category just as is the gigantic drive belt transmitting the force from the motor or steam engine to the machines shaping the parts of the car; or the little rubber disk used as a bumper behind the stateroom door of a Pullman car is just as much a mechanical item as is also the rubber tiling on the corridor floors of the car manufacturers office building. Literally thousands of different purpose items come under this classification, which, for convenience in factory, office, and sales procedure, we group under the following general heads: Belting, Hose, Molded and Lathe Cut Goods, Packing, Matting, Tiling, Miscellaneous Goods and Insulated Wire. The line of demarcation between the divisions is, however, not very evident in places, and consequently, it must be understood by the reader that this classification is more for convenience than for absolute accuracy. We are treating the various articles under the standard headings adopted by most rubber goods manufacturers; which sectional method, we believe, will assist the reader to form a more logical mental outline of what is embraced...
