REPORT OF THE SURVEYOR

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 106 pages. Original publisher: Washington : U. S. G. P. O. : For sale by the Supt. of Docs. , U. S. G. P. O. , 2004. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)56090613 Subject: Human cloning -- Law and legislation -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 the strict requirements for substantive due process outlined in Washington v. Glucksberg, as you know, the Supreme Courts land-mark 1997 decision which rejected a constitutional right to assisted suicide. Nothing in Supreme Court case law establishes noncoital reproduction, much less asexual reproduction, as a fundamental right. I would like to touch very briefly on two final points. First, no right to scientific inquiry and research would be vio-lated by a ban on human cloning. The Supreme Court has never explicitly recognized a fundamental right to scientific research and inquiry. In any case, it is clear that human cloning would not be pure speech, but action, and any supposed interest in cloning re-search would be outweighed by the profound social interest in pro-hibiting human cloning, including the protection of human life. Second, Congress power to prohibit human cloning is solidly founded on Congress commerce power. The language included in S. 790, for example, in or affecting interstate commerce, directly ad-dresses Commerce Clause concerns, as outlined in the Supreme Courts most recent cases in the United States v. Lopez and United States v. Morrison. In nearly 2 months, Mr Chairman, our Nation will celebrate the 225th anniversary of the founding political document of America, the Declaration of Independence, which proclaims it to be a self-evident truth that all are created equal, and endowed by their Cre-ator with certain inalienable rights. To secure those natural rights for the next generation of Americans, a Federal ban on...
