Not illustrated. 1815 Excerpt: . together the second and third terms, and dividing their product by the first term. This is the mode of calculation, when the tables of natural sines, tangents, c. are used. But the operation by logarithms is so much more expeditious, that it has almost entirely superseded the other method. In logarithmic calculations, addition takes the place of multiplication; and subtraction the place of division. The logarithms expressing the lengths of the sides of a triangle, are to be taken from the tables of common loga-N rithms. The logarithms of the sines, tangents, Sfc. are found in the tables of artificial sines, c. The calculation is then made, by adding the second and third terms, and subtracting the first. (Art. 521) 132. The logarithmic radius 10, or, as it is written in the. tables, 10.00000, is so easily added and subtracted, that the three terms of which it isone, may be considered as, in effect, reduced to two. Thus, if the tabular radius is in the first term, we have only to add the other two terms, and then take 10 from the index; for this is subtracting the first term. If radius occurs in the second tenn, the first is to be subtracted from the third, after its index is increased by 10. In the same manner, if radius is in the third term, the first is to be subtracted from the second. 133. Every species of right angled triangles may be solved upon the principle,...
