Excerpt from History of Scotland, Vol. 2 Edward s desire of recruiting his coffers, by the high ransom which he knew must be paid for the Scottish king, and the many noble prisoners, taken at Durham, induced him to postpone his projected inva sion of Scotland,2 and to enter into negotiations, which concluded in a truce.3 This cessation of hosti lities continued, by means of successive prolongations, for six years. But the liberty of the king was a matter of more difficult arrangement. After many con ferences, which were protracted from year to year, the conditions demanded by Edward were refused; and David revisited his dominions only upon his parole, having left seven youths, of the noblest families in the country, as hostages for his return.
