Createspace. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 86 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.2in. A special bedside companion for people of any faith tradition who are in a care facility. There are sections for different times of the day as well as special prayers and meditations for events that might happen in a care facility such as medical procedures. There is also a section of anytime prayers and meditations. God language is gender neutral and inclusive. The prayers and meditations are applicable to both men and women. We hope you will find them inspiring and powerful. From the FOREWORD: The prayers in this book were written using gender neutral language with respect to both the individual praying and to God. I selected the different Names of the Divine according to the feeling of the prayer; I invite the reader to substitute a preferred Name as well as to modify any specific prayer to serve the need of the moment. The prayers were written from the point of view that the reader is the one praying. In my research for this book, I was surprised to learn that most prayers today are written in third person for the patient as well as in reference to the Divine. These prayers are intended as guides to facilitate prayer between the patient and God. When God is not called by Name, God is addressed as You. Especially when one is ill, a person might experience a profound need to talk in dialogue with the Divine. These prayers are intended to accommodate such times and desires. Many years ago, an eleven year old girl whose mother had just died cried to me that she had no idea how to pray. I assured her that God did not need any special words, that...
