This book is definitely not straightforward to get started on studying but extremely exciting to read. It is really simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Excerpt from The Land, Today and Tomorrow: October 1934; Official Gazette Here is the first attempt in the history of the country to put through large scale, comprehensive erosion and flood control projects, applying to complete water sheds from the very crest of the ridges down across the slopes to the banks of streams and thence to their mouths. These are not engineering projects or forestry projects or cropping projects or soils projects or extension projects, but a combination of these, with other specialised activities where needed, operated conjointly with such reorganization of farm procedure as the character of the land indicates as being necessary. This procedure is based on the best information in the possession of scientific agriculturists: - the agronomist. Forester, range specialist, soil specialist, erosion specialist. Agricultural engineer, economist, extension specialist, game specialist, geographer and others. It is the application of accumulated knowledge pertaining to the great multiplicity of variables affecting the three-phase process of absorption. Runoff and erosion, employed not as single uncoordinated implements of attack. But collectively, according to the needs and adaptability of the land, in a combination of integrated control measures, to be supplemented where necessary by new information accruing from the experience of combat.
