Excerpt from The Use of Activities in the Elementary School: A Report of the First Annual Meeting of the National Council of Primary Education, Detroit, Mich., February 22, 1916 Suggestions were given, as follows: Incorporate in your letter your purpose and plan of procedure, showing how you link the child's purpose with your Own; the motivation of each problem and the reaction of the children noted evaluate the results; include samples of children's work, such as letters, oral and written composition, handwork; snapshots of social situations, if these aid in clarifying your statements; cooperation Of other classes, individuals in the community and others; anything which will show gain in social efficiency. Many of the letters have proved interesting, showing, as they do, the teacher's grasp of the situation, strong or weak. As the case may be, dependent upon her point or view, her mode of attack, and - vision. Some have presented the smaller and yet no less significant situation of the socialized recitation, reporting lessons in reading, language, literature, arithmetic, spelling, nature, etc., indicating the added gain to the school in the social spirit throughout, the increased interchange of class groups and grades from the lowest to the highest. Others have taken the larger social situation and shown how the daily classroom work in the various subjects has been motivated in relation to it, as, for instance, preparing for an assembly, a birthday party, a pioneer party, a special Thanksgiving, Christmas, and other festivals.
