By definition, grants include the concept of benefit to the public and society. In myself and colleagues, I ve observed that caring and passionate people with various skills and prior experiences are drawn (accidentally or on purpose) to develop their grant seeking abilities in order to bring much-needed funding for programs and services that help others. The GrantpreneurTM career and business model takes the purpose of grants into consideration through social enterprise and community-oriented business concepts, and does not promote incompatible big business practices. It will help you to explore whether the grant career path is right for you, but doesn t guarantee success. If you decide to move forward, you will find additional information, tips and tools online at.
