LIFE AFTER YOU WHAT YOUR DEATH FROM DRUGS LEAVES BEHIND

WAT-AGE Publishing. Paperback. Condition: New. 94 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.2in. On February 23, 2014, Linda Lajtermans world was shattered when she found her 19 year-old son, Danny, dead in his bedroom. He had overdosed on a drug sold to him by a father in the neighborhood who had been dealing to the local high school students. In the midst of her grief, Linda posted a warning on Facebook, pleading with other parents to resist the not my son mentality. The response was overwhelming. She received thousands of messages not only from parents in the U. S. , but also from parents in South Africa, Australia, and many countries in Europe and South America. That outpouring encouraged Linda to write, Life After You: What Your Death from Drugs Leaves Behind, a cautionary tale meant to shock and hopefully deter young people from using drugs. Lindas story resonates with other parents because they can easily identify with her situation. Linda and her husband, Tito, have been happily married for 31 years. They have two older children who were very close to their younger brother. The Lajterman home in New Jersey was a gathering place for relatives and friends and Danny always took part in those activities. We learned the hard way, Linda said. We were hit with a triple whammy: we find our son dead in his room, we learn he was using drugs, and we learned that the drug dealer was the father of three living in the next town over. I hoped to wake everyone up. The pain, the shock, the trauma was horrible. If it could happen to Danny, it could very easily happen to other kids. In a Note to Parents at the beginning of the book, Linda advises adults to place this book in the...
