

Death of A Clown

By Heather Haven

The Wives of Bath Press. Paperback. Condition: New. 296 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.7in. Winner of the IPPY Silver for Best Mystery Thriller 2014. The year is 1942. Already weary from the Great Depression, the U. S. has joined the Allied Forces in their war against the Axis Powers. Fear and uncertainty is everywhere. Never has the circus soothed so many seeking refuge in its magic, if only temporarily. But there is no shelter from murder, even under the Big Top. Up and coming circus performer, Jeri Deane, finds a young clown strangled inside a beloved lions cage. The town sheriffs threat to close down the Big Top wont stop her from finding his killer. Beneath the spangles and sawdust of the canvas sky, Jeri uncovers deceit, treachery, and secrets more dangerous than any death-defying trick in the show. Even she has much to hide. If the Big top survives the season, will she be able to face her own hidden past. Heather Haven is the daughter of real-life Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus folk. Her mother was a trapeze artist performer and father, an elephant trainer. Heather brings the daily existence of the Big Top to life during World War...
