Excerpt from Maritime Law: Correspondence Relative to Neutral Rights Between the Government of the United States and the Powers Represented in the Congress at Paris, 1856 The congress have not overlooked the fact that their work, in order that it may prove complete, must secure the assent of all the maritime powers since such governments only as shall have acceded to the arrangement can be mutually bound by it. On this score, we attach peculiar value to the concurrence of the United States, that will not consent, we confidently trust, to hold off from a concert of action which defines a new and essential progress in international relations.
