One-minute talks about vegetables would be good. Offer a simple prize for the child that finds out the most interesting fact about vegetables during the week. Have each child pledge himself to try to eat with relish some vegetable he or she has formerly disliked. Give a prize for the best vegetable game that is invented. Have pupils write vegetable letters, praising vegetables to some far-distant friend. In Towns: Get dealers interested in boosting sale of vegetables. Have them get up special window displays of vegetables, laying particular emphasis on their health value. Also have them work up special interest in gardening and seeds from a vegetable standpoint. If the Extension worker has many fine recipes new and especially good, for the preparation of the most common vegetables, get them mimeographed and put them on the counters of grocery stores for distribution to the customers. Home Economics girls from high school and public school could conduct demonstrations...
