Forgotten Books, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Irish Republic, an Analytical History of Ireland I am Of English blood. At times it pulls, strongly. I love the English landscape. I cannot forget the lane that runs from Steyning to the Ring; nor that other lane that lies so pleasantly across the fields to Shottery, hard by the thatched cottage in the fragrant Hathaway gardens. I can hear the rooks at Stratford in early spring, and see the limpid, gentle Avon that Winds SO peaceful - like by the churchyard. I can hear the Skylarks above the fields Of Dorking, out Surrey way, and across the Downs, by Leith Hill and Leatherhead, by Box Hill and Reigate and Ran more Common. I can hear the bleat of sheep on Epsom, and the crowing Of the pheasant cocks from the woods. There are plover in the meadows and poppies midst the corn, and up the Thames by Windsor, removed from London s greed and sweat, there are signets on the water, to be branded by the king. In the stately limes and larches is a choir Of birds, and there is peace and pleasant Shade neath the yew and the beech tree. There are primroses at every brookside, and marguerites beside the whin. Everywhere there are ?owers. There is a smell in the air Of ineffable sweetness. On every road of the island some noble or wicked deed was done - some that had better be forgot. I love the heavy monuments and the cathedral churches - as architecture - and the things they hold. There are exceptions. Andre s bust in Westminster does not thrill me. I have kept green your memory, Mother England, but abhorred the greed and...
