Excerpt from On Carbohydrate Metabolism: A Course of Advanced Lectures in Physiology Delivered at the University of London, May, 1905; With an Appendix on the Assimilation of Carbohydrate Into Proteid and Fat AS an outcome Of the teaching of the glycogenic doctrine it is suggested that the transport Of sugar through the circulatory system to the systemic capillaries for oxidation and force production constitutes a necessary phenomenon Of life, and upon these premises it is argued that a supply of carbohydrate food is needed by the diabetic. In spite Of the circulatory system being charged with a redundance Of sugar from which pernicious effects are being produced, the supply Of carbohydrate, with the attendant abnormal condition arising there from, is to be maintained. With the greatest confidence it can be affirmed that, as a matter Of fact, no principle Of action could be productive of more sinister results. The glycogenic doctrine, then, stands far otherwise than in the position of a mere question of abstract science. No less an important matter than the principle Of action to be put into force in the dietetic treatment Of diabetes is at stake in connection with it. If physiology is to hold its right position, and to act as a guiding instead Of a misleading factor in relation to medicine, the interests Of medicine demand that the glycogenic doctrine Should be abandoned. TO satisfy the requirements Of the case I consider it must be said that nothing short Of a clean page is needed upon which the subject must be treated upon different lines from those hitherto adopted. TO Dr. Selous and Dr. Leslie Eastes I desire to tender my thanks for the...
