Excerpt from At the Sign of the Hand and Pen: Nova-Scotian Authors Olwhich they were so well established for the comparatively un settled regions in which they were offered homes. Most of them were compelled by official or unofficial persecution to leave the Old Colonies; and they looked forward persistently to the time when they could return. Jacob Bailey who was associated with the Loyalist settlement at Shelburne and whose Journal is one of the important records of Loyalist experi ence, writes: When American Independence was announced to me, I was sitting in my study reading; but the instant this disagreeable sound struck my ears I continued motionless, frozen with horror, for the space of ten minutes During the night I enjoyed but little repose. Interrupted slumbers, distressing dreams, and visions of terror were my constant attendants till the morning opened with a sullen and malignant light to renew a train of melancholy reflections. Again he writes: The thoughts of being driven from our country, our much loved home, and all those endearing connections we had been forming so many...
