Date :2008-03-01. This book sets the theoretical teaching, practice, practice teaching one, divided into two electrical technology and training modules. The first module has nine chapters, covering basic concepts and laws of the circuit, electrical measurements, circuit analysis, single-phase sinusoidal AC circuits, three-phase AC circuit, the dynamic circuit analysis, magnetic circuit and transformers, induction motor, relay control system. Each chapter is arranged with pilot projects and exercises, through experiments and exercises, enabling students to fully understand and firmly grasp the importance of theory and electrical technology, law, increase the perceptual knowledge, the ability to effectively train students in the experimental, logical thinking, analysis problems and problem-solving skills. The second module set for training, including the use of basic electrical instrumentation and measurement error of calculation, identification and characteristics of circuit elements of mapping, the power of the equivalent transformation, maximum power transfer conditions were determined, RLC series resonant circuit of three-phase power measurement circuit, asynchronous motor Y- starting blood pressure control, indoor lighting line installation, basic welding skills training, the use of meter and installation. Through training, to strengthen the ability of students to experiment and hands-on training, emphasizing practical skills training, improve their professional quality. This book can be used as vocational schools, colleges, colleges of secondary vocational and technical colleges, private colleges of engineering specialty electrician course materials, but also as a general electrician colleges and training institutions to verify the training materials, but also for technical work in electrical engineering and technical personnel to use reference and learning book.
