Dear Taxpayer, Robot dragons, video games, Christmas trees, snow cone machines, and chocolate. This is not a Christmas wish list. These are just some of the ways the federal government spent your tax dollars this year. Over the past 12 months, Washington politicians argued, debated and lamented about how to reign in the federal governments out of control spending. All the while, Washington was on a shopping binge, spending money we do not have on things we do not need, like the 6.9 billion worth of examples provided in this report. The result: Instead of cutting wasteful spending, nearly 2.5 billion was added each day in 2011 to our national debt, which now exceeds 15 trillion. Congress deadlocked over whether or not savings could be found by closing loopholes within the complex tax code. Meanwhile, the IRS approved roughly 1 billion in tax credits intended for energy efficiency home improvements to individuals who did not even own a house. These recipients included prisoners and children, some probably not even old enough to own a doll house. While Congress bickered over whether or not the salaries of federal employees should be frozen, the federal government paid 120 million to federal employees who were deceased. Congress cannot now even agree on a plan to pay for the costs of extending jobless benefits to the millions of Americans who are still out of work. Yet, thousands of millionaires are receiving unemployment benefits and billions of dollars of improper payments of unemployment insurance are being made to individuals with jobs and others who do not qualify. And remember those infamous bridges to nowhere in Alaska that became symbols of government...
