Serials Publications/Global Research Publications, 2012. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. In an agrarian economy like India, where 75 percent of the agricultural families are of small and marginal categories with tiny and fragmented land holdings, the land hunger naturally be on high note. The landless net is striking so high that nearly 25 percent agricultural land being cultivated by tenants. The semi feudal land relations on one side and green revolution lead capitalization of agriculture have had acted and counteracted on land distribution to the landless. From the days of Srikakulam uprising, the left and extremist organizations have been on fore-front to voice their protest against large scale concentration of land holdings in a few hands. However, the globalization and its constituent liberalization and privatization have transformed the village economic set up drastically that there is a virtual transfer of land asset from forward castes to backward class communities and there emerged a neo-rich class in rural economy. Land transfers infact are part of rural transformation. The present book looks into land transfers in a district of Andhra Pradesh. Two villages of khammam district were studied on sample basis to analyse the dynamics of land transfers. First chapter devoted to introduce the problem with the help of earlier analytical studies. It proposes its objectives and the methodology adopted to forward further. Second chapter gives a detailed account of topography, historical and socio-economic structure of the area chosen for the study. A glimpse into this chapter gives you the bird's eye view of the khammam district. The third chapter deals with socio-economic status of the target group of the study. It shows and substantiates the macro level picture of village economy of the country. Social categorization, the structure of landed property of the sample gives you an insight of the composition of...
