The Individual and the Environment: Some Aspects of the Theory of Education as Adjustment (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By John Ernest Adamson

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Individual and the Environment: Some Aspects of the Theory of Education as Adjustment In this book I have tried to establish the view that in the conception of the adjustment of individual and environment we have a fundamental principle about which a rational theory of education can be developed. It is not new of course. Plato s theory might be described as economic and social, Herbart s as aesthetic, and Rousseau s as natural adjustment. It is a conception which helps to reconcile rival claims arising, for example, when, on the one hand, the individualistic point of view is taken, with its consequent emphasis of the importance of self-realisation; or when, on the other hand, the environmental point of view is taken and questions such as the value of different kinds of knowledge or social duties and responsibilities become primary and fundamental. It certainly makes it possible to present a coherent theory and provides us with an aim and a criterion attractive on account of their simplicity and their direct applicability to the details of practice. I found...
