The abuses complained of were a loose and extravagant mode of collection. Bad laws made worse by an infamous administration. The distillery laws in particular seemed most defective, and consequent] were one of the first objects of attention. It appeared t at the old.law had thrown the trade of distilling into the hands of a few individuals, who abused that monopoly, and taxed the consumption of spirits with exorbitant profits. It was thought, that the accelerated rate at which the old law obliged the distiller to work, required such perfect apparatus, and such experience in the trade, as to render it impossible for an adventurer to commence with a moderate capital, or to succeed with a great one. Another inconvenience from this rapid distillation, was a supposed deterioration of the spirit, which was thought an object worthy the attention of the Legislature. These were the evils which the Commission of Inquiry professed to cure. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
