The Colonial Time to the End of the 18th Century. CHAPTER I. The Settlement Of Tidewater Virginia. N the history of German immigration to the English colonies of North America during the last century Virginia takes a prominent share, says the late Vice-Governor of Illinois, Gustav Koerner, 1) and he might have dated this statement hack to the earliest time of colonization. The early immigration of Germans to Virginia differs essentially, it must be admitted, from that under the leadership of Win. Perin and Franz Pastorius to Pennsylvania, for unlike these it was not organized or compact. With the forenamed there came at once a large number of Germans to the New World, numerous additions followed and they kept together and founded German settlements which have preserved their national character to this day. But into Virginia the Germans immigrated singly, without a...
