WTIU, United States, 2008. DVD video. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. On September 14, 1979, James Doc Councilman (1920-2004) stepped into the waters of the English Channel, attempting to become the oldest man at that time to successfully complete the challenging swim. What made the swim even more difficult for Councilman was that four years earlier, he had been diagnosed with Parkinson s Disease. In addition to coaching Indiana University to 20 consecutive Big Ten titles, six consecutive NCAA wins, and 12 national AAU wins, Councilman s success extended to the international arena. Doc was head swimming coach of the two most successful USA Olympic men s swimming teams in 1964 (Tokyo) and 1976 (Montreal). In 1976, the USA. men s swimming team won 12 of possible 13 gold medals and brought home over two-thirds of all possible medals. This 30-minute documentary follows Councilman through his preparations and for the successful completion of his 13-hour swim.
