Excerpt: . . . it open, and after a moment she exclaimed: Malinche, this letter is from my lord and husband, Prince Felix Salm-Salm. He writes me that the emperor has decided to honor our poor palace with his presence for a few hours, on his way to visit some interior mountain towns. Come, forget your morbid, cruel dream, and let us think twas bred by eating too much sweets before you went to bed. Come, child. tis Maximilian who comes to us, the first European monarch who ever sat upon a Mexican throne. But I know that he is great and good and wise, and my husband loves him well. And so we will welcome him, because we are all good Mexicans, wether we be of Indian, Spanish or American birth, and well not remember aught of your wicked dream--come. The heated quiet of the peaceful quadrangle...
