While we tender you our sincere thanks for it, we shall feel still more obliged to you, if you would do us the honor to permit the Oration you have so eloquently pronounced, and we have listened to with so much pleasure, to go forth connected with the names of the Societies, in a permanent form, and to a wider audience. Gentlemen: I defer to the judgment of others, quite against my own original resolution, in acceding to the request you have made for a copy of my Address, for publication. I beg leave to tender to you, and those whom you represent, my grateful acknowledgements for the very...
