Excerpt from Memoir of Charles Burroughs, D.D: Prepared for the New Hampshire Historical Society After leaving college, Mr. Burroughs pursued the study of theology with Dr. Gardiner, who, in addition to his literary attainments, had no little reputation as a reader and a pulpit orator. Dr. Gardiner's reading is said to have been pre-eminently graphic, so that, if the lesson of the day were narrative or descriptive, his hearers almost fancied that they saw what they heard. Accustomed from infancy to this style of reading, Mr. Burroughs insensibly grew into it; and it was but one of the many pleasures of success with which he entered on his profession.
