Inc., one of the largest technology companies in the USA has again added a camera to its digital EOS line of cameras. The newest addition to the EOS line comes in the form of the EOS 77D; which is also referred to as the EOS 9000D. The new device, which was launched in early 2017, has already been lauded for its design and modern features. It now stands as the latest and trendiest long-range DSLR camera from the Canon conglomerate. The new device is recognized as the replacement or enhancement to the Rebel T6s which was previously released. Despite similar features, the camera has a brand all its own and was designed to satisfy the needs of both the professional and the amateur photographer. Among the primary features of the new device is the 24-mega pixel APS-C DSLR sensor that now boasts a dual pixel autofocus, dual control dials, a forty-five point all-cross-type phase detect system for auto-focus functioning and the new dual pixel feature.
