2003. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. 332 This book is a kind of travel down the memory lane of the author putting pen to paper, urged to do so by his numerous friends and admirers. This work however covers five decades of the countrys political and social history and gives the reader a true insight into the daily life of a growing young man and, later, of an officer serving the British regime and in Independent India. About The Author:- D.G. Bhattacharyya was born in 1913 in a family of Zamindars. The family had taken up commercial activity, which suffered reverses forcing the closure of the business and making the young scion seek employment After graduating in Science from the Calcutta University, Bhattacharyya joined the Indian (Imperial) Police Service, and retired from the same in 1971 with the rank of Inspector General of Police. During his service years, he saw almost all the major events of the century from a participant's perspective, although his nationalistic feelings did, time and again, come into conflict with his official duties. He was privileged to have come into close contact with the three great come into conflict with his official duties. He was privileged to have come into close contact with the three great sons of modern India-Rabindranath Tagore, Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, He occupied ringside seats during the freedom struggle, the Bengal Famine of 1943, the pre-independence riots as well holding a border area posting during the 1962 Sino-Indian border dispute. He was awarded the Police Medal in 1952. A keen sportsman, traveller and photographer, Mr. Bhattacharyya's interests have taken him all over the world. He is a keen angler in still, running and seawater and hunted for sport. Later he put up his guns and took to still and cine photography...
