VeritasPublishing. Paperback. Condition: New. 329 pages. Brief SynopsisThat Other JuanaQueen Juana I of Spain(Juana La Loca)A story of obsessive love, uncontrolled passion and cruel, cynical betrayalThat Other Juana is the story of Queen Juana I of Spain (14791555), daughter of Ferdinand and Isabel, sister of Catherine of Aragn, mother of Charles V (Holy Roman Emperor) and grandmother of Philip II. Juana, a remarkable woman of her times, was highly intelligent and talented, had her own strongly held views and opinions, was daring and valiant, was always faithful to her high moral and ethical principles, but at times, was a victim of her strong emotions. A founder of the powerful Hapsburg dynasties of Spain and Austria, she never knew or enjoyed their fortunes. Instead, throughout her long life, she suffered at the hands of three men driven by their insatiable thirst for power. Her husband, Philip the Fair, the handsome Archduke of Austria, with whom she fell hopelessly and passionately in love at first sight, is her first tormentor. From the start he schemes to get all power and influence for himself. He denies her her rightful status and her own money, and subjects her to physical and mental abuse; he also repays her absolute devotion and worship of him by his open philandering. Eventually she is provoked into attacking one of his mistresses, hacking at her hair and face with scissors. Philip beats her and has her imprisoned. When she inherits the crown of Castile he grants her partial freedom while his treachery in pursuit of power plumbs greater depths. Philip dies suddenly. Juana, at twenty-six and heavily pregnant, is devastated. She invites her father, King Ferdinand, to be joint ruler but he has other plans. By callous and meticulous scheming he paves the way to securing sole power. He...
